

Lone Survivor Says Blasts Preceded Disaster Hammarskjold Killed In Air Crash

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia, (AP) — A plane carrying U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold on a Congo peace mission crashed into the red dust of central Africa Monday, killing him and 12 other persons.

The lone survivor, a U.N. security guard, reported a series of explosions had preceded the crash. He said the plane had turned away from a landing at Ndola's modern airport, apparently on Hammarskjold's orders, after being in radio contact with the airport tower just after midnight. The wreckage was found more than 12 hours after that in a forest preserve eight miles north of Ndola.

Talks With Tshombe
Hammarskjold was flying to this border copper-belt town for talks with President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province. For the last week the United Nations has been trying to bring Katanga under control of the central Congo government. Tshombe's forces have been fighting back, inflicting severe casualties on U.N. forces from several nations. A U.N. spokesman said he could not definitely rule out sabotage or shooting as the cause of the crash of the plane—a four-engine DC6B. The only survivor, Harry Julian, an American U.N. security guard, was quoted at a hospital as saying the plane changed course on Hammarskjold's instructions while preparing to land at Ndola. Officials quoted him as saying that Hammarskjold had changed his mind about landing at Ndola and told the pilot to alter course for another destination. Moments later, according to the injured man, there was a series of explosions aboard the plane. Hospital authorities said Julian was in serious condition.

Owners of the airliner, the Swedish Air Co., said in Leopoldville they were trying to determine whether the plane might have been shot down by a jet fighter of Tshombe's tiny air force. They called this possibility. The crash apparently occurred in darkness, however. A U.N. spokesman said the plane left Leopoldville, the Congo capital, at 5:20 p.m. Sunday on the 1,100-mile flight to Ndola—a trip the DC6B could cover in four hours or less. But it wasn't until after midnight, Ndola authorities reported, that the plane asked and obtained clearance to land. The time was 12:12 a.m. Airport sources said radio contact was broken then and the aircraft veered away and vanished.

Search Not Started
Despite loss of radio contact, no major search effort started until midmorning. Officials gave as the reason the fact that the plane had filed no regular flight plan, as is normal procedure for all civil flights.

Because of this, the officials said, Ndola airport did not know the route the plane was taking and assumed it had put down at some airfield along the route. Informed sources in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, said they learned Hammarskjold's plane did not fly a direct route from Leopoldville but took a roundabout course to avoid Katanga.

The informants gave this report of the plane's movements: As the plane approached Ndola Airport, the control tower asked the pilot to identify himself. The pilot refused and instead asked for permission to descend to 6,000 feet, which was granted.

The pilot then reported he might need fuel but moments later the plane climbed again and disappeared. News that the wreckage had just been sighted came as Tshombe opened a news conference here with a call for a truce between his Katanga forces and U.N. troops.

Tshombe said: "If Hammarskjold has died it is bad for the Congo. We Africans should be grateful for everything he has done for Africa."

Hammarskjold had been U.N. secretary-general since 1953. The slight, sandy-haired Swede died on the eve of a General Assembly session dealing with such problems as Berlin and Red China.

Among those reported at Leopoldville to be aboard the plane were:

Henrich Albert Wieschhoff, 55, director of the department of political and Security Council affairs at the United Nations in New York. A native of Germany, he had become a U.S. citizen and had been with the United Nations since 1946.

Vladimir Fabry, 49, of the United States, legal adviser to the United Nations in the Congo; associated with the United Nations since 1946.

William Rando, 39, of the United States, personal aide to Hammarskjold. He had been with the United Nations since 1946. Mis Alice Lalonde, Canadian, secretary to Dr. Sture Linner, head of the U.N. Congo Mission; Also three security guards — Harry Julian and Francis Ivers of the United States and Serge Barreau of France.

The Swedish pilot was listed as

Dag Hammarskjold

Capt. Per Hellonquist. "The crew were all very experienced men," said a U.N. spokesman. "There was something very strange."

The crashed plane, which had been assigned the U.N. military force commander, Lt. Gen. Sean McKewen, was shot up at Elisabethville a day or so ago. A bullet from the ground damaged the plane's exhaust pipe in one engine. This was later substituted when it reached Leopoldville and a thorough check was made on the aircraft for possible other damage.

The Associated Press reported erroneously from Ndola Sunday night that Hammarskjold had arrived here and entered into truce talks with Tshombe. Airport authorities and newsmen alike gained the impression that a plane which arrived from Leopoldville carried the secretary-general. The arriving party joined Tshombe in the police-guarded airport control tower for a conference of several hours.

But it turned out the plane carried not Hammarskjold but Lord Lansdowne, British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs. Tshombe saw only Rhodesian and British officials here and headed north by automobile in midmorning Monday.

A vast air search was launched at daylight Monday, when it became evident Hammarskjold's plane would have exhausted its fuel. U.N., British, American and Rhodesian fliers participated.

Katanga Claims Win

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo, (AP) — Katanga forces claimed the big United Nations base at Kamina fell Monday and the 500 Irish and Swedish defenders surrendered.

The fall of the main U.N. base in Katanga was claimed in Katanga military radio messages. A U.N. spokesman in Leopoldville said the United Nations had received no messages to indicate that Kamina had fallen.

But U.N. headquarters had received an urgent call from the base 290 miles northwest of Elisabethville for reinforcements, heavy weapons and ammunition. The U.N. force was under attack from 500 Katangans backed by shelling from an armored train.

Spread In Fighting
The reported fall of a second U.N. garrison came amid reports of a spread in the fighting. The fighting broke out last Wednesday when U.N. forces, at the request of the Leopoldville central government, attempted to take over the province from President Moise Tshombe's regime in an effort to unify the Congo.

For the first time central government troops were reported in northern Katanga.

Britain meanwhile called for swift new efforts to effect a cease-fire between U.N. and Katanga forces.

Reported Agreement
The British Foreign Office said Tshombe and Dag Hammarskjold had agreed on a cease-fire Monday before the U.N. secretary-general was killed in a plane crash in northern Rhodesia. It urged new talks be set up between Tshombe and "the senior U.N. representation."

In Kitwe, northern Rhodesia, Tshombe said he would negotiate peace with any successor to Hammarskjold, but not with the chief Katanga representative, Conor Cruise O'Brien of Ireland.

"I will talk to anybody of good faith," Tshombe said. Heavy fighting also was reported in Kabalo, 150 miles west of Albertville, where Katanga forces occupied the airfield, and in Nyunzu, where the U.N. forces took refuge. Nyunzu is midway on the railroad between Kabalo and Albertville.

GM Unit Returns To Work

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors' truck division resumed production Monday, turning out the first vehicles since the start of a strike that closed down most of GM's 129 U.S. plants a week ago.

But the company's five passenger car divisions still were paralyzed by strikes at key stamping and assembly plants. Production of 1962 model cars awaited agreement on working conditions at nearly 50 plants.

The United Auto Workers union authorized strikes a week ago at all plants where no agreement had been made between local unions and plant management.

GM said the Oldsmobile plant at Lansing, Mich., employing more than 9,000 workers would be in full operation Tuesday.

Against Deadline
UAW President Walter P. Reuther and GM Vice President Louis G. Seaton are working against a Wednesday deadline in their labor contract negotiations in an effort to get all of the company's plants back into production by the end of this week.

The GMC Truck & Coach Division at Pontiac, Mich., began rolling trucks and coaches off assembly lines Monday morning following a settlement of local issues over the weekend.

Reuther indicated he was hopeful of clearing away the roadblocks at the local level before the UAW's 280-member GM council meets here at 2 p.m. Wednesday to review the progress of bargaining. The council can recommend to rank and file members either acceptance or rejection of proposed contracts.

Rep. Walter Playing Big Role In House

Special to The Daily Record
WASHINGTON — Rep. Francis E. Walter is playing a leading role in the heavy volume of important legislation being enacted which, as usual, is the prime concern of Congress in the closing days of a session.

The House of Representatives yesterday by a 360-2 vote supported Walter's bill to allow postal authorities to notify American residents that they are receiving Communist propaganda. The bill now goes to the Senate for action.

Walter won unanimous support Saturday of a Senate amendment to the Delaware River Basin Compact in the House. This was the second time Walter's compact legislation won the approval of the House.

Reuniting Families
Earlier last week, Walter's legislation dealing with alien orphans and the reuniting of families here in America won House endorsement. Later, it was passed by the Senate.

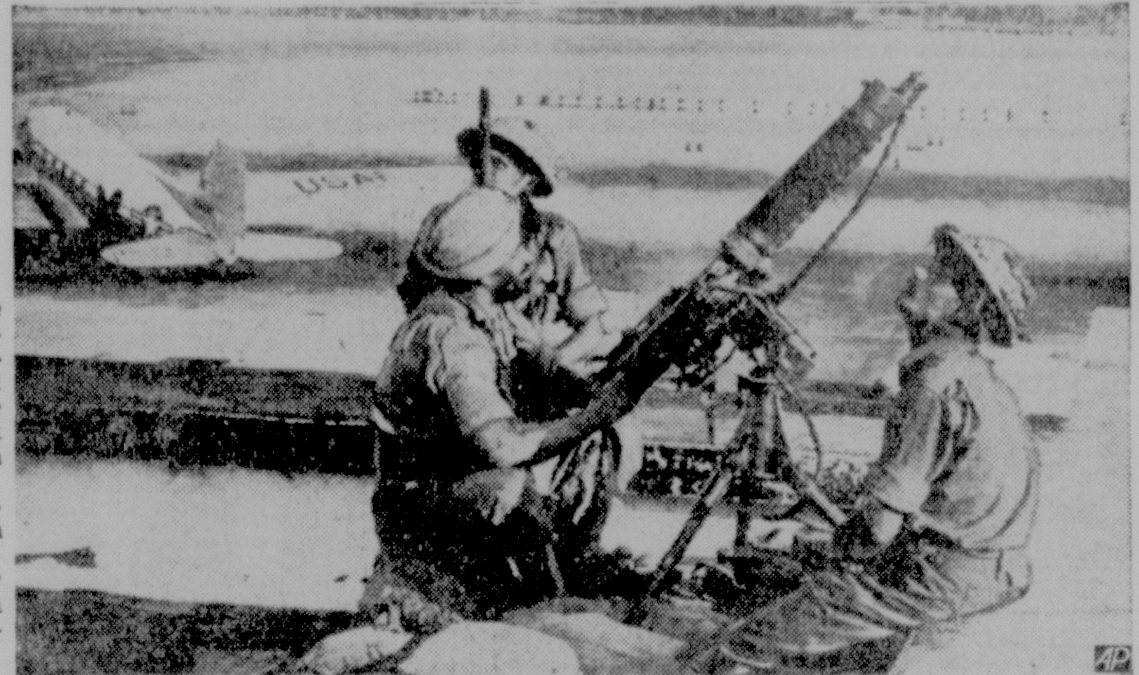

Like the Delaware River Compact legislation, the immigration bill is on President Kennedy's desk awaiting his signature to become law.

On the same day that the immigration bill was passed in the House, Walter's refugee assistance bill was also unanimously passed by the House and later sent to the Senate for action. The bill is now slated for conference action.

Radioactivity Up In 12 States

WASHINGTON (AP)—The polar air mass that broke a heat wave over the weekend may be responsible also for a simultaneous sharp increase in atmospheric radioactivity in 12 eastern and northern states.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare disclosed Monday the jump in radioactivity—traceable to Soviet nuclear testing. The U.S. Weather Bureau came up with the theory that the welcome cool air and the unwelcome hot fallout were connected.

First Week Winners Picked For 'News Tips'

AN ON-THE-SPOT amateur photographer who shot scenes of the spectacular fire at the Fernwood, near Bushkill, was awarded first prize of $5 in the first week of competition in The Record's "news tip derby."

JFK Gets Remains Of School Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House sent to President Kennedy Monday the remains of his ambitious school aid program, thoroughly shredded in months of congressional pulling and hauling.

The 342-18 vote was anticlimactic. It merely confirmed House passage of the two-part $900-million bill two weeks ago. The Senate meanwhile had approved the same bill.

All that was left of the President's far-reaching school program in the bill was two-year extension of the impacted areas program and the National Defense Education Act.

The first helps school districts with a high percentage of children of federal employees. The NDEA is designed to strengthen the teaching of mathematics, science and languages.

Some key backers of the administration program have conceded that the possibility of a wider school aid program is dead for at least two years, and possibly until after the next presidential election.

Siamese Twins Born At Reading

READING, Pa. (AP) — Twin girls joined at the head at birth Monday were reported in fair condition at Reading Hospital. Delivery was normal, according to the hospital.

Their combined weight was 9 pounds 4 ounces. The hospital said they were joined at the back and side of the heads. Physicians were to confer on the possibility of separating them.

The girls were born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schappell of Hamburg R.D. 2. Both are in their mid 20s. They have three other children whose births were normal.

Radioactivity In Keystone Tapering Off
HARRISBURG (AP)—A state health department official reported Monday night that the sudden increase of radioactive content recorded in Pennsylvania last week appears to be tapering off steadily.

"Our observers reported about 17 microcuries of radio activity per cubic meter of air this afternoon," said Karl M. Mason, director of the department's Bureau of Environmental Health Services.

Mason told the Associated Press that figure represents a drop of 18 microcuries from the high of 35 recorded Sunday.

State To Resume Driver Re-Exams
HARRISBURG (AP)—The state will resume its driver re-examination program Oct. 1, the Revenue Department reported Monday.

The program, designed to weed out drivers whose physical condition makes them highway hazards, was suspended temporarily last spring pending reorganization of office space in the Revenue Department.

The lapse in the program also gave the department time to establish new state police check points for eye examinations.

Esther Watch Ordered

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A hurricane watch was ordered Monday night for the Atlantic seaboard between Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Norfolk, Va.—the first time forecasters have named a tentative land target for howling Hurricane Esther.

Chief forecaster Gordon Dunn stressed there was nothing certain about the point of Esther's eventual landfall.

"While her eventual path cannot as yet be forecast with certainty, it should come fairly close and threaten the North Carolina coast late Tuesday," Dunn said in a 10 p.m. advisory.

"A very small westward change in direction from that now expected could bring the full force of the hurricane over extreme eastern North Carolina," he said.

Ordering a hurricane watch was not the final step in weather bureau preparation for ushering Esther ashore. A hurricane warning is given when such a storm is close at hand.

Meanwhile, all Atlantic Seaboard interests were urged to keep in touch with advisories on the progress of Esther—termed a dangerous hurricane.

At 10 p.m. her peak winds were estimated at 150 miles an hour near the center, with hurricane-force winds extending 170 miles to the northeast and 100 miles to the southwest.

Esther's position at 5 p.m. was near latitude 28.8 north, longitude 70.2 west, or about 620 statute miles east of Daytona Beach, Fla., and 570 miles southeast of Wilmington, N.C.

Toward Northwest
The storm was forecast to move toward the northwest during the succeeding 12 hours with no important additional acceleration to her 12 m.p.h. forward speed.

"Small craft in the Bahamas and from Block Island, R.I., to Miami should remain in port as the seas are becoming very rough," said a weather bureau bulletin. "Shipping in the south-west Atlantic should exercise extreme caution."

British Courts Deluged By Ban-The-Bombers

LONDON (AP) — Magistrates worked in relays Monday to nip a civil disobedience campaign by Britain's ban-the-bomb nuclear disarmers.

Ten London courts and one in Scotland operated at a brisk clip, slapping fines — and a few jail sentences — on hundreds of the nearly 1,700 arrested in a week-end sit-down protest in London's Trafalgar Square and at the U.S. Polaris submarine base at Holy Loch.

Bitter Dispute Foreseen Soviet Opposes U.N. Praise For Dead Chief

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union balked Monday at a U.N. Security Council statement praising Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold—victim of a tragic plane crash in Africa.

The Soviet stand tended to confirm fears that Hammarskjold's death would set off a bitter East-West dispute over his successor that could wreck the United Nations as an effective peace making organization.

The 11-nation council met behind closed doors several hours after the official news of Hammarskjold's death was announced here.

Most delegates gathering for the opening Tuesday of the 16th General Assembly were shocked by the news. Some—especially from the smaller countries—were close to tears.

Opens On Schedule
The assembly will open on schedule Tuesday afternoon, but is expected to adjourn in respect to Hammarskjold for at least 24 hours.

Despite Soviet opposition the council expressed shock and grief over the death of Hammarskjold, and praised him as an outstanding leader who had strengthened world peace. It said his extraordinary skill had helped carry the United Nations through many crises "and has developed the organization into an important instrument for building a peaceful world community."

But Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin, while associating his country with the expression of condolences, declared that the Soviet Union did not recognize Hammarskjold as an official of the United Nations.

Zorin declared that the Soviet Union did not share the appraisal of Hammarskjold's political activities as contained in the council statement.

The council was convened several hours after official announcement of Hammarskjold's death. He was making a night flight in an effort, said U.N. aides, to avoid possible contact with jet planes from President Moise Tshombe's air force, which had been attacking U.N. positions in the pocket war raging in Katanga Province. Hammarskjold was on his way to negotiate a cease-fire with Tshombe.

The U.N. Charter makes no provision for anyone to take over in the event of the death of a secretary-general while in office. U.N. officials said that top members of the secretariat were consulting on operation problems.

There was corridor speculation on possible candidates for non-aligned nations, but nothing like firm support was developing behind any one man.

Good Morning!
A little alcohol removes the finish from some people faster than it does from furniture.

There has been much speculation. Apparently the death of Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary-general, in a plane crash in Africa was a factor in the timing of the announcement if not in the decision itself.

"Good Time"
A White House official said Kennedy feels that "now, at a time of crisis for the U.N., it would be a good time to go there and affirm support of the U.N. and its purposes."

It was explained that the address might be delayed by eulogies of Hammarskjold.

There was also uncertainty as to the impact Hammarskjold's death will have on the U.N. agenda. Kennedy's speech will, of course, have to be fitted into the U.N. schedule of proceedings.

Kennedy has been urged by some advisers to present the United Nations a comprehensive disarmament and nuclear test-ban programs to forestall Soviet moves.

One theory is that the Soviet Union will rush through its present series of atmospheric tests and then offer to sign an immediate test ban—which would cut off the just-started U.S. series of underground tests and forestall any atmospheric testing.

House Unit To 'Look' At Redistricting
(Special to The Record)
WASHINGTON — The House Judiciary Committee will go into special session at 11 a.m. today to take "one more look" at legislation to enlarge the House.

Chances of passage by the Congress during this session appear slim, but there has been tremendous pressure by Republicans and Democrats to restudy a proposal submitted by Rep. Francis E. Walter, Easton Democrat, to enlarge the House by four seats.

The Judiciary Committee will take up the proposal under a parliamentary procedure calling for suspension of rules. It is feared, however, that if the committee does approve the measure, there will be a flood of similar-type legislation once it gets to the House floor in the form of amendments offered by various members of the House.

If a closed rule prevails—preventing no amendments to the Walter proposal—it would not preclude the possibility of the Senate amending House-passed legislation.

Final Attempt
The meeting this morning is a final attempt by leadership of both parties to help various states in reapportioning according to the 1960 census.

Pennsylvania would get one of the four seats if the Walter proposal is acceptable. The others would go to Massachusetts, Missouri and Illinois.

28th Seen Having 50-50 Chance Of Going Overseas

PENNSYLVANIA'S 28th Infantry Division—of which Company "A" of East Stroudsburg is a part—has a 50-50 chance of being shipped to Europe before the end of the year, an armed forces journal predicted.

In the report, the journal speculated Friday that the U. S. may send 125,000 or more troops to the Continent before New Year's Day—including two National Guard Divisions.

The Journal — The Army-Navy-Air Force Journal — said the Guard divisions would be chosen from four which were Part Specialistists

"Because movement of the troops would tax port facilities," the journal said, "the Army probably will send about 5,600 port specialists to Europe next month or in early November."

The Pentagon order to send 40,000 troops to Europe was described in the journal as the first phase of a "massive build-up" which could involve six combat divisions unless the Berlin crisis subsides.

Besides the two National Guard divisions, the 125,000 troops would tax port facilities. Infantry Division at Ft. Benning, Ga., and the 2nd Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex. They would be followed by the 1st Infantry at Ft. Riley, Kan., and the 4th Infantry at Ft. Lewis, Washington, the journal predicted.

Speculation Rampant
Speculation that the 28th Division would be pressed into Federal service has been rampant since the onset of the Berlin crisis.

Rumors that the division was "on its way" were given added weight when the outfit was alerted Sept. 5.

Since that time orders have been issued to the 1st Battle Group which call for 20 hours of drill monthly—including two eight-hour sessions Saturdays and Sundays plus two two-hour exercises on "off weeks." The new training is to start in October.

Campaign For Members Runs To Saturday

Community Concert Drive Opens

THE Pocono Community Concert Association's 1961 annual membership campaign was opened last night at a meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

The kickoff session began a drive which will continue until noon Saturday, at which time membership in the association will close for the year and program of concerts for the coming season will be arranged.

Already two concerts have been signed: the piano team,

Gold and Fildale; and an orchestral program titled, "Music for Tonight," conducted by Albert Tipton.

Carroll All, president of the local concert association, presided at the meeting and Mrs. Ann George, campaign chairman, presented plans for the campaign, assisted by Mrs. Donald Corson.

John Cunningham, field representative for Community Concerts, Inc., of New York, was introduced. He will be in Stroudsburg during the entire campaign week.

It was announced that campaign headquarters will be open until noon Saturday in the Penn-Stroud lobby. Campaign headquarters phone number is HA 1-9000.

Drive workers indicated that the goals for memberships and money will be reached before the week ends. They also plan distinguished series of concerts by some of the world's finest artists.

The cost of membership is $7.50 for adults and $3.50 for students, covering the full cost to members for the privilege of attending the entire concert series.

Only members of the association will be admitted to the concerts, with no sale of tickets for any one concert.

Anyone wishing to become a member is urged to contact campaign headquarters or one of the workers before noon Saturday.

The entire venture is strictly non-profit, devoted solely to bringing fine artists to the Stroudsburgs.

Trustees Defend Stern's Firing

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—Trustees of West Chester State College said Monday, Dr. T. Noel Stern was dismissed as president at the school because of numerous complaints.

They said Dr. Stern had been informed of the complaints and of the results of an evaluation of his administration and he should not have been surprised by his dismissal.

They did not detail the reported complaints.

Stern, president for one year, has charged that his dismissal was due to his refusal to lower academic standards for athletes, refusal to give the athletic department autonomy in disposition of its money and firing of service employees unfit for their jobs.

Meanwhile, Dr. Charles Boehm, state superintendent of public instruction, was here Monday to lay the groundwork for an inquiry into the firing.

Chamber To Seek Homes For Reserves

LIVING quarters will be needed for the families of Army Reservists being assigned to duty at the Tobyhanna Signal Depot, the Pocono Mountain Chamber of Commerce disclosed yesterday.

The chamber's board of directors voted at its monthly meeting in the Penn-Stroud

Hotel to place an advertisement in The Daily Record inviting residents of the area to list available housing facilities with either the depot or the chamber.

A total of 238 reservists has been assigned to the depot as part of the armed forces' stepped-up military preparedness program. The first contingent, comprising 119 officers and enlisted men, will arrive from Georgia Oct. 9 and a similar number will reach the depot two days later. The second group is from Philadelphia.

LeRoy Mikels, president of the chamber, reported on a meeting held with Col. Lester W. Kale, commanding officer, at the depot last Thursday.

He said military authorities are unable to say definitely how many families will need housing facilities here, but that some of the men already have indicated a desire to bring their wives and children along for the duration of their tour of duty.

Allowed To Live Off Post
The men are allowed to live off the post, the same as Army men now stationed at the depot. Most of the reservists are World War Two and Korean War veterans and have families.

Since all will be living on Army pay, lavish quarters are not desirable, authorities emphasized.

They asked everyone with a house, apartment or other living quarters available to call the chamber office, HA 1-2901, or Ray Davies, housing coordinator at the depot, TW 4-8301, to list the facilities.

Mikels also spoke of the urgency for area residents to do whatever they can to make it easier for the men and their families to get settled here. He called upon business places, banks, churches, organizations and schools to extend any help and service they can during the transition period.

THE POCONO Mountains Chamber of Commerce is going to prepare two maps of the area for a local and out-of-town distribution.

At yesterday's chamber meeting, President LeRoy Mikels appointed a committee headed by Clyde T. Burke start work on the maps and have them printed in pamphlet form.

The committee was authorized to prepare a large map that will show all the new and old highways serving the area, together with industrial building sites and information on the Pocono Mountain and resorts.

Show All Streets
The second map will show all the streets in the boroughs of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg and part of Stroud Township.

Serving on the committee with Burke will be Horace G. Heller, Paul McBride, Jesse Flory and M. F. Crowe.

The chamber also voted to hold an open house celebration in October, the exact date and place to be chosen later.

Lawrence Signs Highways Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence signed into law Monday a bill making the largest transfer of local roads to the state highways system in Pennsylvania's history.

The act adds 805.82 miles of roads to the state system.

The largest single amount is 175 miles slated for transfer in Philadelphia.

The act affects virtually all of the state's 67 counties.

As originally written, the legislation would have added 675.82 miles to the approximate 41,000 miles on the state system.

However, the senate tacked on another 130 miles and the bill won approval in that form in the final days of the 1961 legislative session.

The act becomes effective immediately.

Women were forbidden by law to practice medicine and pharmacy in 17th Century England.

109th Brass Air Training Directives

DIRECTIVES from 28th Division Headquarters and the Continental Army Command on the new intensified combat training program for National Guard units were discussed at a meeting of staff and commanders of the First Battle Group, 109th Infantry, last night in Scranton.

East Stroudsburg's Co. A is part of the First Battle Group. The 28th Division is one of four National Guard units put on a stand-by basis for possible federalization on Sept. 5 in view of the Berlin crisis.

20 Hours of Drill
As a result, it will undergo accelerated training amounting to 20 hours of drill monthly, including two eight-hour sessions on Saturdays or Sundays as well as two two-hour sessions on off-weeks.

Last night's meeting was called by Col. Walter W. Unley, battle group commander.

Meanwhile, the Army-Navy Journal added impetus to the belief the 28th Division may soon enter active service.

The magazine speculated the United States may send 125,000 or more troops to Europe before the end of the year and said this would include two National Guard divisions.

Burglars Grab 200-lb. Safe, $320 At Vacation Valley

BURGLARS took a 200-pound safe containing about $320 in currency and a small amount of cash from the main lodge at Vacation Valley, Echo Lake, yesterday morning.

State Police at Stroudsburg said the thieves entered through an unlocked door, apparently between 5:15 and 5:35 a.m. and rolled the safe, mounted on casters, through a rear door.

Presumably a car was used to transport it to the Middle Smithfield Township dump at Sand Hill, about three miles away, where it was found.

Troopers said a chisel and hammer were used to open the safe. They called it a "crude job."

The resort is owned by John and Francis Shinn.

Jury Complete For Reis Trial

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The selection of a jury to try Philadelphia night club owner Lillian Reis on burglary charges was completed Monday.

However the panel of potential jurors was exhausted before two alternates could be named. Presiding Judge Charles W. Staudenmeier then directed Schuylkill County Sheriff William Martz to impanel 10 persons to appear when the trial resumes Tuesday for possible duty as alternates.

Give To The Chest

Monroe County Community Chest and Council has launched its 1961-62 campaign for voluntary contributions to help finance the many necessary services of its 12 member agencies.

The $89,897 goal is $4,726 more than was raised last year, when the county fell short of meeting its quota, and represents the minimum amount needed by the Red Feather agencies to carry on their services to the community.

Considering the wide range of these services, the fund-raising appeal is certainly a modest one for it boils down to only slightly more than $2.25 for every man, woman and child in Monroe County based on a population of nearly 40,000.

The money the Chest allocates to the various member agencies is a necessary supplement to the income some of the agencies derive through other means.

A number of these charitable and welfare groups have to charge for certain services, but their income from such charges is considered when their budgets are scrutinized.

The Chest makes up the difference between income derived by the agency from grants, fees, etc., and the amount necessary to meet operating costs. Lowering or abolishing the fees would necessitate increasing the amount provided by the Chest.

This is as true of the smaller agencies as it is of the larger ones. Only three Red Feather agencies are scheduled to receive more than $10,000. The Salvation Army, for instance, will get $14,500 if the quota is subscribed; the YMCA $13,500, and the General Hospital $12,500.

Other agencies who will share the voluntary contributions are the Boy Scouts, $8,950; Child Health Committee, $1,080; Children's Aid Society, $9,000; Girl Scouts, $5,700; Guidance Center, $3,300; Mental Health Assn., $1,200; Pennsylvania Citizen's Assn., $100; USO, $500; Visiting Nurse Assn., $6,500, and Community Chest, $7,340, administrative; $4,747, campaign, and $1,000, contingent fund.

Every citizen who wants to share in keeping the humanitarian services of the Chest agencies effective should give as much in the united drive as he or she would in 12 separate campaigns.

For those who are unable to give the entire amount in cash, the Chest has set up a convenient payroll deduction and pledge system whereby the gift may be spread over 12 months.

But, regardless of which method is used, the amount should represent the maximum that each person can give to support the 12 different health, character-building and welfare services that are represented in the Chest appeal. As a final note, don't delay your giving; you can ease the burden of the volunteer solicitors by making your contribution now.

'Looks As If He's Trying to Make It Easy for You'

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — To many he is quite pointedly as "old iron pants."

The appellation isn't one uttered in derision — but rather in respect, albeit sometimes a rather grudging respect.

"Old iron pants" in this case is Pennsylvania's present Governor, a political old pro with a savvy many don't understand — David Leo Lawrence.

He only has a shade more than 15 months to go in his present four-year tenure; he's just wound up his bout with his third legislative session, and next year at this time his successor in office will be on the political warpath.

The Democratic Lawrence Administration is in its twilight. It has passed its zenith and an appraisal of old pro Lawrence as a Keystone State chief executive insofar as the "old iron pants" theme is concerned, is perhaps worth noting.

Fundamentally the reference has derived from the rather peculiar trait — peculiar in the always highly explosive political world — that once David Leo Lawrence makes a decision he almost invariably sticks with it through thick and thin.

You can scratch your head all you want to — and you'll find very few instances, if any, where on major issues or major decisions, he has reversed his stand.

This may seem a rather innocuous trait; perhaps not one of too great importance depending of course on how you look at it, but seemingly it is indicative at least of one facet, one side, of the personage who today happens to be Pennsylvania's governor.

Perhaps the most outstanding illustration of this trait — and one of the primary reasons why he oftentimes is hailed as "old iron pants" — is the manner in which he has handled the thorny problem of key appointments in his official family.

For example, he has yet to boot out of office a member of the official family, a department head, or any of the major appointments made directly by him.

There have been firings to be sure within departments; firings of subordinates to the department head himself — but none of them directly by the governor.

In actuality this is a most unusual happenstance; one which we cannot record as having happened before under any of the preceding five administrations we have covered as a newsmen.

Pressures in this direction are almost unbelievable. There are the usual political pressures for this or that luckless chap's scalp; a political leader or political faction here or there displeased for any of a host of reasons over actions of this or that member of the official family. Outside pressure groups are other hand-forcers.

Yet — whether to his credit or not is beside the point — Mr. Lawrence has maintained a "stand firm" attitude, an "old iron pants" attitude, and has stood by his people through thick and thin.

One of his most controversial figures of course has been State Traffic Commissioner O. D. Shipley, whose side has been singled out and demanded by a host of individuals and groups primarily because Mike Shipley has played the road straight down the middle without favoritism. Even some lawmakers have tried to pluck the balding Shipley scalp — but alas, without success.

A number of other key personnel have been on the firing line — but they're still on board! For a reputed political old pro, Pennsylvania's current governor has appointed an amazing number of non-politicos to key posts, a galling and teeth-grinding move insofar as political arch-deacons in the field are concerned.

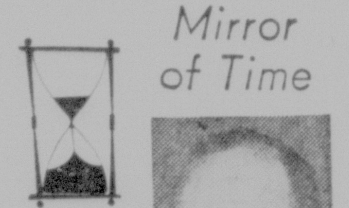

But there they are today — professional careerists carrying out their chores with the quiet and stubborn blessing of "old iron pants" himself. To illustrate a few: Secretary of Highways Park Martin, Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice Goddard, Secretary of Agriculture William Henning, Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles Boehm — each of whom has about as much political savvy as a prune in a coffee pot!

Small wonder perhaps they call him "old iron pants"!

Monroe County residents witnessed one of the greatest showings of the Northern Lights. The Aurora Borealis could be seen for more than two hours.

A top grade motor oil was being sold in Stroudsburg for 11 cents a quart. At the same store one could also purchase an new 45 plate auto battery for $5.25 less $2 if they had an old battery to trade in.

Pocono Textile won the Monroe County Softball League championship by defeating Line Material 14.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

It won't be long now. In approximately six weeks voters will go to the polls to select the persons they wish to sit in county and borough offices the next four years.

Three of the biggest fights involves Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg mayor posts and Monroe County's treasurer office.

In Stroudsburg the battle bringing the most comment is the Hal Harris and Jos Small runoff for mayor. Hal is a former mayor who was unseated by Ed Doran four years ago. Small is running for the spot for the first time. However, he is a well known individual and is expected to give the many-time local mayor a run for all the marbles.

Harris, a Democrat, bested Doran in the Primary. Small, a Republican, was unopposed in the preliminary to the General Election.

Over in East Stroudsburg, the mayor race has Oden Libbey, Democrat, facing Thomas Kistler, a GOPer. Both men were without opposition in the Primary.

Libbey and Kistler have started working along party lines and also sent out feelers for the independent voter and the splitter of tickets individual.

Early surveys indicate that the ultimate winner is a toss-up at this time.

In the tussle for county treasurer, Warren Loney, a Democrat, meets up with John R. Neuman, a Republican.

The big "if" in this particular fight is who is going to get the big vote piled up by Sam W. Everett in the Primary.

Everett, a Democrat, carried Barrett, his home bailiwick, by an overwhelming Majority. But it was not enough to dig into the totals accumulated by Jim Cadue, who finished second, and Loney.

Nauman, also from Barrett, hopes to grab some of Everett's Primary backing in the General Election. "If" he does then the race could turn into a real donkeybrook before it's over.

Politics, they say, breeds strange people. One who is your friend today can easily be your enemy tomorrow. You never know until the final vote is cast whether you are riding high on the hog or falling off the tail.

Naturally the General Election's combatants know this and are putting their best foot forward to attract all the voters, regardless of party lines.

Sometime after 11 p. m. Nov. 7 all of us will know who stepped off smartly and maintained the even cadence through Democrats, Republicans, Independents and Non-Partisans.

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The upcoming Senate investigation of Teamster Boss James Hoffa's close ties with some of the most influential Communists in the U. S. is going to make sensational headlines.

As a starter, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is examining the mutual assistance pact signed by Hoffa and the Communist-influenced International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

In this agreement, Hoffa and the officers of the union agreed to a broad range of cooperation on union matters as well as on "political activity beneficial to each other."

Hoffa made the agreement at a meeting with three of the union's top officials, all of whom are under a red cloud as a result of congressional investigations and federal prosecutions.

For instance, Congressional records show that John Clark, president of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, and A. C. Skinner, western vice president, two of the officials that met with Hoffa, took the Fifth Amendment before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in 1952 when questioned as to whether they were members of the Communist Party.

Sworn testimony before the committee says that Skinner was a former leading official in the Communist apparatus in Illinois and that Clark was an ardent cooperater with known Communists.

Justice Department records show that Skinner and Irving Dichter, a secretary-treasurer and the third union official that met with Hoffa, have been convicted of charges of filing false non-Communist affidavits with the Labor Department under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Skinner and Dichter were among fourteen key officials of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union who were indicted in 1955 on charges growing out of the filing of the non-Communist affidavits. They received three-year prison sentences and $2,000 fines. They are now out on bond pending appeal of their convictions.

Pointing The Finger — The Senate probers plan to call Hoffa to quiz him about the secret details of the mutual assistance pact and his association with other known Communists.

Also, they want to know the role that a known Communist played in getting a "misleading" article about the "Fact" published in the Teamster Union's official magazine.

This article, which appears in the September issue of "Teamster," pictures the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union as being persecuted by Congressional committees and the Justice Department.

Significantly, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is receiving full cooperation in their investigation from the Justice Department and Senator John McClellan's racket investigating committee.

Hoffa has been under fire by the McClellan committee for his financial aid to Communists and former Communists. Their report charged that the Teamsters Union has been aiding persons who were expelled from the AFL-CIO because of Communist influence or domination.

The committee's investigation will also touch on Hoffa's close association with Harry Bridges, boss of the Communist influenced International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), and with the racket-ridden International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), which controls a large share of the East Coast docks.

In 1958, the Committee issued a report charging this alliance was "a definite menace to our nation's security both economically and militarily."

"Economically and militarily the U. S. is unprepared for a general transport strike by these unions since such strikes, especially when Communist leaders are involved, have been known to occur with lightning suddenness."

The report stated: "The racketeering leaders of the Teamster Union have displayed an utter lack of concern about the Communist records and activities of the dominant officials of the ILWU."

On another front, Attorney General Robert Kennedy is making new headway in trying out a strategy to topple Hoffa from his position as head of the 1,600,000-member Teamster Union.

His nation-wide investigation into the financial affairs of a score of Hoffa's associates in the Teamster organization, the underworld, and business is starting to pay off.

Aides report that union officials, including some of Hoffa's closest associates, are telling tales on their boss at such a rate that Justice Department officials are having trouble working all the "informers" meetings into their tight schedule.

Already, federal grand juries are hearing witnesses and studying financial records in Detroit, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington, D. C.

How To Survive — The Defense Department's Civil Defense office is ordering two million additional copies of its brochure on fallout shelter and survival information. More than three and one-half million already have been passed out. Tax treatment of home bomb-shelter costs is uncertain. Internal Revenue Service specialists say there is the House Ways and Means Committee, the body that handles the tax laws, says the cost of home shelters can be written off as a contribution — to the federal civil defense program. Representative Wilbur Mills, D. Ark., chairman, says Congress will settle the issue next year, probably by permitting deduction of part of the costs.

Inside You And Yours

You Can Fight Acne Four Ways

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Are greasy cosmetics, chocolate bars or vitamin pills shattering your teen-age's world?

All three may trigger acne. At first whiteheads form in stopped-up overactive oil glands. Dirt soon darkens whiteheads into blackheads.

When clogged pores burst and spill irritating oil into the skin, bulging cysts form. Infection may creep in and scar the skin.

Fight acne four ways! 1. Reopen clogged oil glands! Scrub briskly, but lightly, with a warm soapy washcloth—five minutes twice a day. Ask your druggist about germ-killing cleansers.

Make-Up Clogs Pores. Rough materials, like wool, irritate the skin. Cake make-up clogs pores. Avoid them.

And hands off! Pinching and squeezing can explode mild acne into giant cysts.

2. Eliminate acne-causing chemicals! Vitamin B12, cobalt, iodine and bromine, found in many vitamin-mineral pills, irritate oil glands, too. Cold and cough remedies often contain bromine or iodine. Check the labels carefully or new cysts may boil as the cold evaporates. On hot, humid days acne often storms across sweat-soaked skin. Fan away acne.

Instead of tennis and basketball, swim, hike or play golf. The acne prescription includes fresh air and exercise.

Irritating Foods. Nuts, chocolate, sharp cheeses and iodine-rich sea food usually irritate oil glands.

Many other foods spark new flare-ups.

You'd starve if you gave them all up at once. Cut out a few at a time to find out which are bad for you.

3. Frequent warm soaks help dissolve raw, red, infected cysts!

Stronger Treatment. 4. Let your doctor prescribe stronger treatment. Female hormones are the perfect medicine when acne flares up just before, during or after each menstrual flow.

Both emotional tension and lack of sleep multiply acne troubles, so don't worry and rest assured — at least eight to ten hours each night!

Bible's Appeal Continues

This has been a big year for the Bible. The new English translation has scored a popular success. And the American Bible Society reports the King James version continues to be widely distributed and, presumably, widely read.

A new survey of society activities lists worldwide distribution of the Bible last year at 23 million volumes, or more than 2,600 copies a day.

The entire Bible now has been translated into 221 languages. At least one book of the Scriptures has been published in 667 languages.

Thus, the continuing effort of centuries to "spread the Word" now includes 1,165 languages and dialects.

The appeal of the Bible remains undimmed in the space age. Ancient truths shine through an age of materialism. Many millions devoted to the Scriptures readily testify of this help along the road of life.

Concepts Of Conservatism

These days one hears much about Conservatism that sounds strange to the ears of an old Conservative. Just as a Conservative would not submit to the authoritarianism of the Communists, so he will not submit to the pressures of any particular group of Conservatives who demand monolithic principles.

Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, a consistent Conservative, each year holds a picnic in his apple orchard at Berryville, Virginia. On that occasion, he usually delivers an address. This year's address was devoted to his concept of political Conservatism.

It seems as though Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, a Liberal, has said that Senator Byrd should be purged as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee because the Virginian would not support the platform written by Chester Bowles and adopted by the democratic Convention.

Senator Byrd replied to this: "In reply I stated publicly that I was unalterably opposed to nearly everything in the platform; that I intended to fight everything inimical to the best interest of this Country, in or out of the platform and that I challenged him to take his fight to the Senate floor. "I said, as a member of the Senate, my first allegiance was to the people of Virginia, and I recognize no outside control over my vote. The Virginia delegation to the Convention opposed the platform."

This is a correct position. The Constitution holds that each state should be represented in the Senate by two Senators. A Senator therefore represents his state and is obligated to the people of his state. Such liberals as Senators Clark and Javits do not regard themselves as representatives of their states but as national officials which they are not under our system of government. It is difficult for the liberal to fit themselves into our constitutional system because they believe that not the rule of law should prevail but the rule of reason. The question then arises: Whose reason?

Senator Clark took the issue to the Senate floor and he got one vote — his own.

In these days of political opportunism and confusion, it is satisfying to read a defense of the American system of government without any apology for it and without any attempt to find a compromise with some Marx-Lenin concept or some attempt to discover a new system of law and life. This nation is constitutionally a confederation of sovereign states. The trend in recent years has been to forget the Federalistic characteristic of our political system and to assume that the government in Washington possesses inherent rights. It does not. It possesses delegated and designated authorities, obligation and limitations, carefully stipulated in the Constitution and in the amendments thereto.

Senator Byrd defines Conservatism as follows: "Conservatism . . . means to accept responsibility for preserving and protecting our basic principles and institutions while exercising the privilege of using and developing them."

"What are these basic principles? There are others, but foremost I list States Rights, and the independence of the three separate but coordinate branches of government. This combination provides the check and the balance to insure against concentration of power which, by experience, we have learned to fear."

"These, and others, are the principles on which we achieved our liberty and our freedom for the pursuit of happiness. They are the base of our greatness."

It would be interesting to see this statement of American idealism contested. This is no conclusion of a reactionary who fails to recognize the need for human progress or the value of orderly process of law. Reactionaries are not Conservatives, because they exclude development and growth from their program. They desire what once was to be eternal. Senator Byrd makes the distinction: "Virginians are not reactionaries. We do not turn back the hands of the clock. We do not necessarily defend the status quo. But neither do we assume that change is necessarily progress. We want progress, but we want sound progress."

This is the wisdom of the experienced idealist. The conservative idealist does not seek a pragmatic method to solve all problems; he believes in fundamental principles and attempts to fit progress within the margins of those principles. The reactionary is quite different; he is opposed to progress in any form and so closes his mind that he never countenances the development of man. The Conservative lives by historic memory; the reactionary lives by taboos and prejudices, by unhistoric title-tattle.

Yom Kippur Starts At Sundown Today

YOM KIPPUR, the Day of Atonement, begins at sundown today for area Jews.

It is the last day of the "10 days of penitence" which began with Rosh Hashanah. The 10-day period, according to Jewish tradition, is a time for repentance, prayer and charity in preparation for the holiest day of the year, Yom Kippur.

On this solemn and important day, almost all Jewish men and women refrain from eating and drinking and even young children try to fast for at least a part of the day.

The Bible (Leviticus 16:29-31, 23:26-31, and Numbers 29:7) also requires that Jews do no manner of work on Yom Kippur. The people spend the entire day in prayer and worship.

The word "atonement" explains the nature of the day. For "atonement" is made up of two words — "at" and "one."

And on the day of "at-one-ment" Jewish people seek to be "at-one" — in harmony with

Diners Get View Of Wildlife

GREENTOWN — Diners at the Horn of Plenty Restaurant spent nearly an hour on Sunday watching the antics of a large black bear who came to dinner! The huge animal moseyed into the restaurant parking area and sniffed around among the cars for a few minutes, occasionally peering into a window to see what was within.

Apparently attracted by the fragrant smell of home cooking, the bear sat by the door of the restaurant until he was tossed a turkey carcass by Bob Hettes, owner of the place. This he appreciatively demolished, and then plainly asked for more. A basket of home cooked scraps followed the turkey, with dinner guests inside the restaurant enjoying the show.

Preparing For Winter

The bruin was, no doubt, preparing for a long cold winter in the Poconos. A sign of the times was the 28° temperature reading yesterday morning, and the coating of ice on everything on Sunday!

Pastor Attended Conference

STERLING — Rev. Roy Davis, pastor of the Sterling-Hollisterville Methodist Church, has returned from a conference on evangelism at Sky Lake, Windsor, N. Y.

The local pastor recently completed the course of study school at Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D. C. This special school is designed to train pastors for ordination as ministers in the Methodist Church.

Plan Embassies

KHARTOUM (AP)—The Sudanese government says it will establish embassies in Tokyo and Peiping. Sudan gave diplomatic recognition to Communist China in 1948.

God. Yom Kippur is, above all a day on which Jews seek forgiveness not only from God, but also from man.

Judaism teaches that one cannot ask God's forgiveness for wrong-doing unless he has also asked others to forgive him for any evil he may have done to them. But simply asking for forgiveness is not enough. The wrong must be righted whenever that is possible. There must be a true feeling of repentance. God recognizes the sincere desire of the worshipper to undo his evil and to live his life better.

Just as the best known part of the Rosh Hashanah service is the blowing of the shofar, so in Yom Kippur services the part best known and loved by Jewish young people is the famous Kol Nidre prayer.

This Kol Nidre prayer is recited on the eve of the Holiday. It is not only the words of the prayer which are stirring, but the awesome and inspiring melody. This beautiful melody has become so much a part of the world's great religious music that singers and musicians of many faiths have made recordings of it.

Asks Forgiveness

The prayer itself asks God to forgive the congregation for breaking any religious vows made to Him which they might not be able to fulfill. In fact, "Kol Nidre" means "All vows."

If a man tries his best to fulfill his vows unto the Lord, but is prevented from so doing through no fault of his own, the "Kol Nidre" allows him to be at peace once more with his conscience and with God. The prayer does not apply to promises between one man and another. These cannot be broken except by the consent of the person to whom the promise is made.

Solemn, Serious

Yom Kippur eve is observed in the synagogue in solemn and serious fashion with prayers and hymns. Late in the evening most members of the congregation return to their homes from the synagogue; some very pious people spend the entire night in prayer.

Services are held all the next day, beginning with early morning and ending at nightfall. On Yom Kippur, as on Rosh Hashanah, a selection is read from the Holy Scriptures and a sermon delivered by the rabbi.

Also conducted on this Holy Day is the Yiskor, a memorial service for the departed. This service reminds those whose dear ones have passed away to remember their good deeds and to follow the path of righteousness. The concluding prayers of the day are recited towards sunset. At nightfall the end of the fast is announced by a single blast of the shofar, (the rams horn) after which the worshippers return to their homes.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

In the flood of the well-rounded phrases with which the mighty of the world deplored the death of Dag Hammarskjöld yesterday, no personal knowledge or international wisdom could add weight to any words of ours.

But no observer of the local scene could ignore its effect on every person and on every activity. Even the DAR luncheon yesterday seemed subdued in comparison with the usual excitement of the vanguard of winter activities.

The DAR, at least on a national level, has ever been skeptical of the United Nations, out when their speaker, from the fullness of his heart in challenging them to maintain their heritage in these dark days added "Days that have grown even darker with the tragedy of the past few hours. Who's going to stop them now? Only the Lord — with our help!" there seemed to go up a silent but fervent "Amen!"

For the first reactions for us in the hinterlands, even those with no great interest in or convictions about the UN itself, were highly emotional. Somehow in his televised debates with Khrushchev, in his actions however casually understood, in his very appearance, Hammarskjöld had become a bulwark — somebody everybody counted on.

Not since The Flood did one topic dominate every snatch of conversation caught on local streets, every knot of people every supper table. Reflected were fear, dismay, anger, suspicion and a desire to strike back at those they held responsible, whether justly or not.

Wives couldn't settle down to the dishes until the news was over; other news — even Maris 58th home run — seemed to pale into insignificance; and I couldn't work up any enthusiasm even for talking about the new Fall hats at the luncheon. However, I must report that Dr. Eichler gave an excellent talk, spiced with homely anecdotes and the saving human touches that bring a travel talk to life, and that members of the DAR are looking fine after their summer recess.

'No PTAs In Russia' Educator Reports To DAR

"There are no PTAs in Russia," Dr. George A. Eichler, former superintendent of schools of Northampton, told members of the Jacob Stroud Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at their opening luncheon at the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday.

Eichler was one of a group of prominent American educators predominantly school superintendents, to tour Russia during the brief honeymoon after Khrushchev's Camp David visit.

"We could do no wrong," he said, adding that many of the pictures they took would be cause for arrest at the present state of world affairs.

"As superintendents, there were many times when we could have got along without the PTA," he added wryly. "There are no school boards in Russia, either, and that too seemed like not such a bad idea, but when they told us there were no superintendents of schools, we backed up."

Mixing humor with serious analysis of Russian education, and his slides with commentary, Dr. Eichler said that the only place Russia was ahead of the United States was in rocketry.

"Certainly their schools are not superior," he added. Soviet education starts with the poliburo and is handed down by directive. No teacher would deviate from the prescribed curriculum in the slightest detail.

There are no disciplinary problems, however, in Russian schools, he said, since fathers can be fired from their jobs for the action of their children. Although education, even through the universities, is free and even permits a living allowance for students, the state is the absolute authority on who goes to what school and on what use the state will make of them afterwards.

Although university professors receive the highest salaries in the Soviet Union, elementary teachers with 20 years of service achieve only what is a starting salary in this country, he explained, adding that, even so, that salary together with the respect of the community puts them on top of the heap.

"Nobody talks back to teachers in Russia," he said firmly. He showed pictures of conferences with ministers of education, of visits to classrooms in Moscow, at the Black Sea, in Georgia, in the Ukraine, in Leningrad, and many pictures of children.

Also included in his slides were pictures of East and West Berlin in dramatic contrast to the present situation there.

The program marked a new twist for the DAR, whose opening luncheons are timed to coincide with Constitution Week.

Mrs. William Ernest Andrew, regent, presided at the luncheon at which regents of neighboring chapters were guests. Mrs. Dale Learn, program chairman, introduced the speaker. There was no music meeting.

Mrs. Harold C. Edwards and Mrs. Frank S. Weiss were co-chairmen of the hostess committee.

Mrs. Joseph Valley Wright, state regent of the Pennsylvania DAR, will be the speaker at the October 23 meeting.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"The Friendly Store"

A.E. Wyckoff

STROUDSBURG, PA.

This column is being written on a Friday afternoon... a busy Friday, for my desk is pretty well covered with ads to be written, and I've been racing through the store most of the morning, collecting items that a group of College girls might enjoy receiving as souvenirs at a Tea. The tea is tomorrow, and, from where I sit right now, it seems that just about everything is in readiness.

In one corner of my office is a huge basket, covered in black crepe paper, dozens of red bows camouflaging the handle. Amy Eilenberger of our Notions department decorated this, and Dottie Dunn took time from her switchboard duties to arrange the many and varied gifts I had collected on my tour of the store. Last year, the girls had an equal variety of souvenirs to choose from, but most of them reached for the delightful little wiggle-head dolls from Japan. Knowing this, we asked "Papa" Wyckoff to bring some from New York the other day... and here they are, tucked into the basket, some of them wagging their heads sagely in the breeze from the electric fan.

College girls enjoy eating, that's for sure. (Who doesn't?) So, we have some pretty paper napkins from our Gift Department right at the center of the basket. These napkins are imported and quite nice we think... we hope our guests will agree. We also have several boxes of some very excellent tea sold in our Candy department—just the thing to relax a girl when she's all tensed up prior to an exam, providing she has access to some hot water.

Perhaps more than anyone else, college girls must cope with the problem of soiled clothes. Knowing this our Notions department tried to be helpful by contributing plastic hooks with a curved top that slides over a shower rod or hook, for drying undies or stockings. Kits of thread and needles are another notions suggestion, and then, because they're cute to see, we also selected a few brightly hued, dwarf-like dolls that invite you to pull their nose and find the hidden tape measure.

Wooden cats with long, string-like tails, and amusing enameled wood men and women (golfers, waiters, etc.) dangling at the end of long strings are another novelty the girls might like. Designed just for fun, they have the more practical use of marking books.

My basket also contains fluffy handkerchiefs, tiny baskets of sachet, as well as square satin pillows of sachet from our Accessories department, and Dottie has combined them all most artistically.

Actually, our party is not really a tea. Nothing so formal as that, and nothing quite so informal as a mere Coke Party either. Coke and tea are both available, but the table will be centered by a big bowl of punch. And just as the gift basket is black and red, and the box where the girls register is black and red, we are carrying out the college colors on our table. Hazel Henning tells me she's covering the table with black oilcloth, and using red dishes and red napkins.

Jean Decker, of Gift Wrap, covered the box into which the girls' names go, and also wrapped most of the many prizes we're offering. Lovely prizes they are too!—a Ball Point Pen from Florence Predmore's Stationery department; two gift certificates valued at 2.50 each; an Arpege Traveler from Pearl Walters Cosmetic department; a Bobbie Brooks sweater vest from Carrie Rusk's Sportswear department; pajamas from Cora Albers of Lingerie; a pouff rug from Walter Wyckoff of Floor Covering; a Princess Gardner wallet from Bea Gorgy's Accessory department; a cream-tone desk lamp from Mary Hitesman of our Housewares and Electrical shop; Pussy Foot Boots (those big, warm, furry ones) from Carl Rohrbach of Shoes; stretch leather gloves from Laura Fabel of Hosiery and Gloves department; a set of four black lap trays from Marion Leedom, head of our Gift Department; and a corduroy throw pillow from Dick Kishpaugh of our Home Furnishings Department.

NOW... don't YOU wish you were a Freshman girl at ESSC?

Maris At Threshold Of Ruth's Feat

Clouter Needs Two In 3 Games To Tie; Tension Runs High

By GEORGE BOWEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger Maris couldn't have reached the threshold of breaking one of baseball's most cherished records, Babe Ruth's 60 home runs, in an atmosphere more unfavorable than Baltimore.

The official story of the New York Yankees' effort is scheduled to end here Wednesday night. Maris arrived Monday with 58 homers and three games against the Baltimore Orioles remaining in the decreed 154 for the record.

Baltimoreans are bound to have mixed emotions every time Maris comes to bat starting with a doubleheader Tuesday. This is Ruth's home town and Baltimore baseball fans hate the Yankees more than any other American League foe.

Maris isn't in a confident mood himself. Baltimore's Memorial Stadium and two B-B pitchers account for his uneasiness.

Barber, Brown
Manager Luman Harris of the Orioles has nominated left-hander Steve Barber and right-hander Skippy Brown to start pitching against the Yankees Tuesday night. Milt Pappas, a right-hander, is the Oriole choice for Wednesday night.

Maris was going to ask Manager Ralph Houk to excuse him from batting against the southpaw Barber.

"He's rough on me," said Maris. The Yankee added: "I'm bushed and I can sure use the rest."

Houk nixed in advance any time off for Maris until the Yankees clinch the pennant. They are two victories away from it.

Maris not only has had trouble against Barber's pitches, but the other Oriole pitchers have been no bargain for him either.

In 15 official times at bat in five games in Memorial Stadium, Maris has only two hits for a puny .133 average. Neither of the hits was a homer. He did knock one out of Memorial Stadium on July 17, but it didn't count because the game was called at the end of 3½ innings because of rain.

Only Home Run
His only official homer off an Oriole pitcher was knocked off at Yankee Stadium May 21 against Chuck Estrada, who is not slated to face him during this series.

Memorial Stadium's home run territory is one of the toughest in the league. Although it is only 309 feet down the foul lines, the 14-foot high concrete stands curve sharply to 382 feet.

Between the 382-foot marks, there is a seven-foot wire fence with dead center 410 feet from home plate.

Mickey Mantle, Maris' teammate, has been able to knock four of his 53 homers this season in Memorial Stadium. And two of them were off Barber. But Mantle is a switch hitter while Maris sticks to the left side of the plate.

Mantle has given up hope of matching Ruth's record in the 154 decisions that will prevail because Ford rule will prevail because that was the season's schedule in 1927 when Babe hit 60.

The schedule this year is 162. Wednesday night's game will be available on television sets throughout the nation except in major league cities. The American Broadcasting Co. announced it will carry the game (8 p.m. EDT) on 150 stations.

The Wednesday game actually is the 153th of the season. The Yankees have played one tie—as they also did in 1927 when Ruth set his record.

Maris belted his 58th homer in the 12th inning Sunday, leading the New York Yankees to a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers and leaving him three games to equal or surpass Babe Ruth's all-time record.

Maris' homer, which came off reliever Terry Fox with one on, traveled 400 feet and bounced off the facing of the second deck of the right-center-field stands.

The homer came in the Yankees' 151st game and kept Maris two games ahead of Ruth's record pace of 1927. The Yankees will play a total of 162 games this season but Commissioner Ford Frick has stipulated that Maris must hit 60 homers within the 154-game span to tie Ruth's record.

Actually, Maris wouldn't have had an opportunity to hit his 58th homer in the 12th had not Yankee first baseman Bill Skowron committed an eighth-inning error which enabled the Tigers to tie the score at 4-4.

X-Rays Show Art Mahaffey Has Fracture

CINCINNATI (AP) — X rays taken Monday disclosed that Art Mahaffey, Philadelphia Phils pitcher, suffered a skull fracture over his right eye when hit by a thrown ball in Sunday's game with the Cincinnati Reds.

Dr. George Ballou, Reds' physician, said, however, that the young hurler, a native of Cincinnati, "is doing very nicely." He said Mahaffey probably will be hospitalized three or four days.

First X rays taken Sunday indicated only a severe concussion but the fracture was disclosed in later tests.

Mahaffey was hurt in the ninth inning of the game when he went into second base standing up on an attempted sacrifice by Boy McMurphy. Cincinnati pitcher Jim Brosnan threw to shortstop Eddie Kasko to retire Mahaffey, but Kasko's throw from only a few feet away hit the Phil hurler over the eye.
